Where can I see my $50,000 Homestead Exemption?

Look at the bottom left corner of your TRIM notice, marked "exemptions" and you will see a breakdown of each exemption applied to your property, including the additional Homestead Exemption.

You will receive full benefit of the additional $25,000 Homestead Exemption if your property’s assessed value is $75,000 or more. If your assessed value is less than $75,000 but greater than $50,000, you will receive an additional Homestead Exemption equal to the amount of assessed value between $50,000 and $75,000. If your property’s assessed value is $50,000 or less, the property is not eligible to receive any benefit from the additional Homestead Exemption.

Three Ways You Can Lose Your Homestead Exemption
1. Receiving additional residency-based exemptions for properties in Florida or other states
2. Renting your homesteaded property more than 30 days in 2 consecutive years
3. Having a driver’s license in another state or voting outside of Brevard County

Changes in Your Property’s Title
If you have made changes to the title of your property such as a change in marital status or you put your homesteaded property in a trust or life-estate in the last year, you must re-apply for homestead exemption. State law requires that you re-apply if your property’s title changed in any way. The deadline for applying for any exemption is March 1st.

Field Inspections of Properties
Florida law requires the Property Appraiser to conduct field evaluations of each parcel every 5 years. When visiting your property, our staff will be easily indentified by badges and shirts with both the county seal on the front and “COUNTY APPRAISER” on the back. Thank you for your help and assistance.
Update: COVID-19 and Your Property’s Value

Florida law requires the Property Appraiser to value all property based on the condition and fair market value as of January 1 each year. Any adjustments due to market conditions caused by the COVID-19 virus will be reflected in the 2021 assessments. Visit BCPAO.us for latest updates.
